About illuminate

The focus of illuminate is to deliver meaningful and inspiring experiences for students and young people that'll active their passions, get them excited about the business world, and confidence to see how they can leave their mark. We design all of our education experiences around our motto of Believe in Tomorrow Today, as we want to deliver meaningful education experiences where young people learn about their innovative capacity as well as growing in confidence and resilience for whatever they choose to do in their future.

Founded in 2010, illuminate is a multi-award-winning business<sup>1</sup> that still remains completely focused on empowering our young people – and making it fun too. We're not about delivering textbook materials and making students attend lengthy presentations; instead we're focused on making everything we're involved in as engaging and supportive as possible, which has seen all of our programs met with great success. Since our launch, we've worked with a number of major organisations to deliver creative workshops, education programs and facilitate sessions with large audiences, which only helps us to empower our next generation today. A key part of what we do is actually challenge students to step out of their comfort zone which has in turn transformed their approach to work and school, as well place value in our young people to help them to realise their potential then unleash it because the world is ready.

We do this in a number of different programs, from 3 or 5 day education experiences mapped to national vocational outcomes as well as the Australian Curriculum, to shorter and more intensive sessions around key skills and opening their eyes to the workforce. To the time of writing, we've impacted over 1500 Tasmanian students through these programs - but recognise that there are so many more who should also believe in tomorrow today, which is why we are passionate in sharing what we do far and wide.

About Adam Mostogl MTeach BEnDes

Founder / Inspirer and Program Manager of illuminate Education & Consulting
2015 Tasmanian Young Australian of the Year

In any given week, Adam Mostogl might be helping young entrepreneurs to kick-start their companies, stimulating small businesses to challenge the status quo, challenging communities to understand their potential or teaching hundreds of students to embrace innovation to solve the problems of the future. Focused on empowering the community to create change, Adam established illuminate Education & Consulting in 2009 and partners with many organisations, to inspire young people to embrace their creativity, identify business solutions to simple problems and recalibrate their approaches to learning. Living by his motto that "if you want something done for the community, you need to get out and do it", Adam inspires young people to realise their potential, unleash their creativity and seize the opportunities, because, as he says, "the world is ready".

What is the nextgen Challenge?

The flagship education program of illuminate Education & Consulting is the nextgen Challenge, where we put students into teams to develop a business that solves a problem in our community in five days. To prove the effectiveness of the business, students have to produce a business plan with two years of financial forecasting, deliver a sales pitch, create elements of a marketing strategy including radio and newspaper advertisements, all while undertaking a number of smaller challenges along the way too. To scaffold these tasks, we are assisted with a number of speakers from the business and education community to provide students with real world advice that would benefit the creation of the submissions, while also leaving a lasting impact with information that students can take with them into their working lives. Teams compete against other teams from across their region (with some locations having schools two hours apart coming together to participate in the challenge), as the challenge is designed for regional areas around Australia to give them the opportunities and resources to succeed, with between 100 and 200 students participating in any given week. The submissions that students complete will be assessed by judges from the local government and business community, who in past challenges, constantly remark at the high calibre of work that these students create in such a short time period. The skills are not just ones useful for running a business, as students learn about stress and team management, independent learning, budgeting, planning, creative thinking and speaking in public which will impact them for the rest of their schooling and working lives.

What do you learn during the nextgen Challenge?

Because of the way we deliver the challenge, the participants in the challenge go from learning the challenge on the first day through to being able to pitch an idea that could exist and get funding by the fifth and final day. Throughout the process, some of the learning includes;

- Idea Generation, especially how to evaluate ideas for a financial return,
- Market Research, to ensure there is a market for their prospective idea,
- Budgeting and Financial Management, as participants have to ensure their business is financially sustainable through using profit and loss statements,
- Public Speaking, through multiple pitch opportunities throughout the challenge,
- Business Strategy and Logistics, recognising the planning that goes into running a business,
- Brand, both in understanding how to build a business brand as well as their own personal brand,
- Marketing Strategies, through developing collateral to market their business idea,
- Problem Solving, as participants have to develop a business idea in response to a set challenge,
- Innovation, from using creative approaches to solve existing problems in new ways,
- Teamwork, as the challenge is undertaken in small teams,
- Pressure and Stress, as the tight deadlines keep teams to task,
- Meeting Deadlines, as submissions are not assessed if students are even one minute late,
- ICT Skills, as communication occurs through Twitter as well as using software to complete tasks,
- Self Confidence and Motivation, as the challenge is structured for students to lead their own learning,
- Leadership, as each team is led by a 'CEO' who sets the agenda for the teams,
- Learning From Professionals, who deliver presentations and give feedback to the participants to inspire them,
- Knowledge Construction, as participants listen to presentations and have to decide how to use the information,
- And much much more.

How to Use This Document

The following document runs through Version 8.1 of the Australian Curriculum, demonstrating the links between the illuminate:nextgen Challenge to various subject areas, including;

- English,
- Humanities and Social Sciences (Geography, Citizenship and Civics & Economics and Business),
- Mathematics,
- Science,
- Technologies (Design and Technologies & Digital Technologies), &
- The Arts (Media Arts),

as well as Australian Blueprint for Career Development and Tasmania's My Education Skills Framework.

Beside the relevant content descriptors are how this is displayed through the illuminate:nextgen Challenge as outlined below. These skills and elements have been identified as different focus areas of the challenge which the students need to complete in the process of undertaking the challenge. Those links are as follows;

- Developing and evaluating an innovative solution to the given problem,
- Evaluating ideas within the team and giving constructive feedback,
- Ability to present ideas to receive feedback and implement accordingly,
- Using the Business Model Canvas to plan, outline and review the business solution,
- Presenting an Elevator Pitch to succinctly outline the proposed business solution,
- Undertaking and presenting Market Research to evaluate community sentiments and secondary data about the proposed business,
- Producing a Business Plan to outline the strategic direction of the proposed business,
- Producing financial documents to prove the viability of the proposed business,
- Preparing the Marketing Package components to publicise and promote the proposed business,
- Scripting and delivering a Pitch Deck presentation including using multimedia elements to enhance the presentation,
- Preparing and presenting a Trade Display stall to showcase the business solution,
- Working as a team under pressure of tight timelines to meet all outlined deadlines,
- Analysing problems as they arise and delivering innovative solutions,
- Adapting language and presentations to fit difference audience, environments and purposes,
- Working productively within a team environment to independently complete the set tasks and submissions,
- Making decisions around how students individually and as a team work best,
- Listening to and interacting with the guest presenters,
- Using social media to communicate during the challenge,
- Using relevant software to produce the required submissions and tasks, &
- Evaluating and reviewing submissions in draft form before the deadline.

As the challenge is completed in teams, not all students will experience all of these components, but will be exposed to all components through presentations students are required to attend or viewing the work of their peers during public presentations and displays. It is also important to mention that the links vary in how closely they align to the content descriptors, as some are explored through the above tasks and capabilities where others are explicitly taught and expected. The solution and application of the teams also creates variations amongst teams from a single school, which should not be seen reducing the value of the challenge, instead prepares students for the world of work and lifelong learning which students need to develop and succeed with into the 21st Century.

The Core Challenge

During the illuminate:nextgen Challenge, participants are given a core challenge at the start of the week to create their business ideas around. Because of the varying nature of this element, the curriculum links displayed also does not take this into account which could create further links to the content descriptors across a range of subjects.
